WHO WE ARE

Research rooted in community

APSS Research brings together AIDS Programs South Saskatchewan, academic partners, and people with lived experience to study what keeps our communities safer and healthier. From needle recovery to harm reduction education, our projects turn community knowledge into evidence that informs our programs and supports better services across Regina and southern Saskatchewan.

Dieser Bereich ist für Inhalte vorgesehen, die zu einem späteren Zeitpunkt ergänzt werden. Der vorliegende Text dient dazu, einen ersten Eindruck von der Gestaltung und dem Umfang der Seite zu vermitteln. Er zeigt, wie sich längere Absätze in das Layout einfügen und wie das Zusammenspiel von Schriftgröße, Zeilenabstand und freien Flächen wirkt. Die endgültigen Informationen werden im weiteren Verlauf an dieser Stelle eingesetzt.

Hier könnte eine kurze Einführung in das jeweilige Thema stehen. Sie gibt einen Überblick über die wichtigsten Inhalte und erleichtert den Einstieg in die folgenden Abschnitte. Je nach Anwendung kann dieser Bereich eine Beschreibung, eine Erläuterung oder eine persönliche Begrüßung enthalten. Für den aktuellen Entwurf ist zunächst entscheidend, dass die vorgesehene Textfläche sichtbar wird und sich ihr Erscheinungsbild beurteilen lässt.

Report Needles

Mapping Needles, Reducing Harm is the first research project arising from a community-academic partnership between AIDS Programs South Saskatchewan, Inc. (APSS) and the Eaton Lab, based at the Jane Addams College of Social Work, University of Illinois Chicago.

This project utilized a real-time geographic information system (GIS) to map the community needles data collected through www.ReportNeedles.ca.
